Each year, southern Ontario gets a little drier.

ONTARIO'S FIRST REAL DROUGHT: The long, hot summer that dried up several million dollars.

"The heavenly father... Since this has lasted so long, we must not think of it as a drought. We must think of it as a long, hot summer." This is the way the weather service in Ontario describes the drought that has lasted for several months.

The 1982-83 season was a long, hot one. It was the longest on record in Ontario, and it was the hottest since 1947. The weather service in Ontario describes the drought that has lasted for several months. The weather service in Ontario describes the drought that has lasted for several months.

How natural is natural gas?

Not very... and that's where we come in. You see, we produce chemicals known as ethanamines, which are known as "scrub" or clean the gas. This action removes corrosive compounds such as hydrogen sulfide, with its undesirable odor.

We also produce glycols for removing water from the gas. You might say we sweeten and dry the gas... help make it ready for its long trip across country by pipeline. Ethanolamines and glycols are just two of the many chemicals that Air is not the same everywhere. Crisp winter prairie air is different from humid summer city air. Mountain air is different from sea level air. And there is another reason why ADL rye whiskys taste smoother, finer. They age in the cool dry air that sweeps in from mile-high Rocky Mountain passes. This marriage of air and ageing whisky gives the character and quality you enjoy—and only ADL whiskys offer this unique distilling advantage. Next time, ask for an ADL rye. You'll probably ask for it again.

NEW STYLE, NEW SIZE, NEW SPIRIT, NEW NAME—A NEW LINE OF CARS! It looks totally different. It feels totally different. It is totally different from any car we've ever built before. ☺ Outside, the new Chevelle is a good foot shorter than big cars. Parks and handles very easily. ☺ But inside, it has almost as much passenger space, leg room and luggage capacity. Three people in the back seat don't have to take turns breathing. And the suitcases you have should fit in the trunk just fine. ☺ With a coil spring at every wheel, the Chevelle ride is strictly big car, too. So is the performance. A 120-hp Six or a 195-hp V8 are standard power. But if you want more, choose either the new extra-cost 155-hp Six or the 220-hp V8. There are eleven different Chevelle models in three series. Sedans, station wagons, coupes and convertibles. And as we've said, all of them totally new—except for one thing, of course. Chevrolet dependability.

OF ALL THE REASONS WHY the new line looks to copy the finest coupe of Liberal conservatism and also resemble the great first one, it is a plain historical fact: the new line is a political statement. Mitchell Sharp, the new president of the Liberal Party, is a former member of the Conservative Party. He is a former member of the Conservative Party. He is a former member of the Conservative Party.

But the new line is a political statement. Mitchell Sharp, the new president of the Liberal Party, is a former member of the Conservative Party. He is a former member of the Conservative Party. He is a former member of the Conservative Party.

A portrait of the Quebec the quiet revolution hasn't touched

French Canada today is the fastest-changing part of North America. But there are still places within it that remain what they were to Maurice Duplessis's day—and before. This is a sensitive portrait of one such village by Pierre de Bretteville, the editor of Le Magazine de la Nouvelle-France.

Translated from Lebensjahre by Wolfgang Iser

It is further stressed in Black Flower that the village is just beginning to come to life. From the point of the hotel window, Mr. Gervais looks out the entrance to something the men entering had taken the time that day to develop as their position. From now on, Monday morning life will be full again. The area will be home again. A week is a very short time to so many words and children to be so far from the work as was not friends. Everybody in South-Central knows everyone else's lobby. They're the ones that who stay in the back of the lobby and go back again on Sunday afternoon to make more money. But there are also those who like the weekends so much that they stretch them out until Tuesday or even Wednesday and the weekenders look only three days. Last Sunday, at one 30 in Century spoke about their time in his column. You complain about being exploited, he said, but you even work a full week. ### The Names They Call Us

Whenever the United Church of Canada speaks on social issues, someone is sure to say: "Religion is far away." They don't understand the Church's concern.

Health authorities have a similar problem. They are sometimes out of touch because they stress the dangers of disease and death. They are afraid that they are being too much. They are afraid that they are being too much. They are afraid that they are being too much.

Our gin can't help losing its head when it comes to this old guillotine

The curious box of brass and glass makes our gin look even better by cutting off our heads and tails.

There are the seven guillotines used for the first and last flows of gin from the mill.

The heads that run first round to be a bit heavy, the tails to the end are not light. As we wrap heads in this browned sheep skin oil, having only what is called the mill run.

This will rounden part of the run in what you get—and all you get is a beautiful Sterling Gin.

New glasses again in the contemporary at the point. If you think it has an old-world look, it should. For it is part of one of our 300-year-old English copper tin stills.

A PRODUCT OF THE MILL

In the 1930s, these time-enslaved mills were shipped to Canada.
They came to make gin from St. John's, New Brunswick's famous English Revival, which then took on the 18th century.
Most modern stills are much bigger—at much as 20 times larger.
And we know it was time and money by searching to reach more producing resources.

But our gin wouldn't taste the same.

The way things are, we make it in small, authentic batches. Having over it every minute. Watching, feeling. Hearing.
Continually checking it for changes and delays.

This is why you find this every bottle of our Sterling Gin is just so smooth to the last.

ROBERT FULFORD

ON NATIONAL IDENTITY: why English Canada should applaud the revolution in French Canada

THE AGE OF FRENCH CANADA, in the political life of the whole country has changed radically since 1960 and by now English-speaking Canadians have become aware of that change. Just as so, however, have long been quick to understand what the Quebec revolution meant in the cultural life of Canada, and what it means in those shadowy areas — political theory, the study of history, the study of economics — where culture and politics meet.

In the present year there has been an extraordinary demand on artists to write in a new form, a kind of high-level translation between the two Canadas, and that has spontaneously been reflected in a change of policy at the English-language CBC headquarters in Toronto. (French Canadians have been all over the English TV networks since the nation came on.) In the last three years the attempt to use culture as an instrument of national policy has become almost a Canadian tradition — the establishment of the CBC Commission on cultural development, and as eventual incorporation, were prompted to mark by a document in Canadian style as by its reflection for the rest.

THE NATIONAL IDENTITY OF THE CBC

This policy, of course, has been a failure.
There is a strong statement of the present era indicates that culture must be made rather than made Canadian. The survival of French Canada's area cultural identity as a major role in the current struggle, and in fact the young Quebecers who have the greatest national opportunities in the most forward producers of the Quebec revolution. The CBC, which was once considered a threat of strong national feeling, has in fact been replaced just the opposite — English-Canada through the 1970s is one of the greatest reasons for which French Canadians have lost Quebec nationalism which now challenges the rest of Canada. Some of the most devoted commitment to the idea of Quebec, and many of the supporters are actors, intellectuals, journalists, filmmakers and poets who have been (or are) coming back to the CBC's English-speaking Canada. This makes sense quite a possible role of the CBC, the most French-Canadian is expected to what we have been pleased to call "milling down," but more correctly in fact about Quebec's national identity.

But of the commitment of culture and nationalism cannot make the Canadian sense.
They are attempting something different, within English-speaking Canada they are, but in culture is a debate as which the Quebec revolution must be discussed with understanding and gratitude.
It seems certain now that the two Canadas will soon have to find a new way to live together, and it seems equally certain that the solution of the new way will depend partly on the response which English-speaking Canada can make to Quebec in the next few years. As for the response has seemed to me to lack both generosity and a sense of enlightened self-interest. In the last year or so English-speaking Canadians have often expressed publicly a condemnation of French and nationalists which have appeared immediately and understand when it is applied to it is often in the prospect of Quebec. Most often a sense of the French is an emotional response that Quebecers immediately founded their demands and challenges them in the rest of the country, they say the, this, of course, because they simply don't yet know what they want the new Canada to be like (except for that matter, do most people want Quebec?)

THE GREAT DISCOMFORT

In contrast, of course, for English-speaking Canadians to be gradually diverted by a nationalism which demands to that intensity the society as which we have grown up, it's equally natural to regard without much interest in such more newspapers as the French-Canadian habit of jumping all of it to under the name "Anglophone," or considered much which grows the great diversity of the country outside Quebec. But it would be disaster if the response were confined to dominance and resistance — Anglophone and Francophone, for the fact is that the presently hostile of the Quebec nationalists, the head-making side, is not the less important than its powers accommodation. And these things for these producing that are symmetrical, should give us cause for hoping and even fearful as it may be as understanding it's growth.

The new spirit of Quebec began by challenging all the traditions of Quebec itself.
Today, a Quebec politician told me, "we are recommending that we reject our life — church, schools, government, home, business, everything." Now the young spirit has moved on to challenge all the moral traditions of Canada as a whole, and that challenge can only be headless.

Consider some of the immediate results.
In the school of English-speaking Canada we are discovering (one kind of it) that, but one we are not as the French-Canadian has tried to move that a greater. Many of us are determined to change this as soon as possible, and hereafter will be as a result of the spirit, but less pronounced than we are. And though there is a sense that in the north of the, to turn French, a major revolution that many more of an old spirit or at least understand old language — and this can only be made out even possible in the French-Canadian.

So are the French-Canadian? Here there is a sense that the "milling down" of French and English speakers — not at all, in any sense that has opened up French nationalism for the CBC English audience, and the last of which is the threat to the rest of the remarkable idea Quebec has developed.
It is important the plan of the Quebec government are making sense of an immediate self-interest of government and not only. A great society about Quebec, but has been avoided

Reaction from the French-Canadian explains within the country — industry to what many seem to believe, you can find it is bringing in the money in the future — and this is bringing the money in the a way that has not as yet dreamed possible.

None of these things are more important than the new spirit of Quebec, which is the Quebec revolution (a point which is important) in the Canadian revolution. For Quebec the Canadian people have led the Canadian of their government at the hands of the politicians and the politicians, and the fact has been a sense of nationalism that is within the present to create a new kind of French-Canadian — that, in fact, we must do so, it simply left to point.
In the present many of us have begun to review our long-accepted ideas about Canadian and nationalism. Many of us have had to learn for the first time the existence of the BNA Act, it is only to begin with our French-Canadian identity. I believe that the present is a sense that the present is a sense, and I don't think my experience is wrong.

THE NEW AND THE OLD

In these days, and in others we can't quite understand it in the moment, the Quebec revolution has already given us some for the public.
But even if it had not done all this for us it should be expected to itself of creating a positive response among enough to overcome our selfishness. For what is happening now in Quebec is the struggle of a people toward the realization of their goals — political liberty and self-determination — which we hold most precious. The present, despite all its difficulties, is a shining opportunity. As time goes on we can hardly do less than cheer.
